

HOW TO REACH DELHI

National Capital Territory, India | Best time: October to March

Delhi is one of India's best-connected transport hubs, served by a major international airport, several railway terminals and expressways in every direction. The Airport Express Metro is usually the fastest transfer into central Delhi. Choose the correct railway station carefully because New Delhi, Old Delhi, Hazrat Nizamuddin and Anand Vihar are in different parts of the city.

BY AIR

Indira Gandhi International Airport | 16 km from Connaught Place | 25 minutes by Airport Express / 40-70 minutes by road

Transfers: Airport Express Metro, prepaid taxi, app cab or hotel transfer. Taxi: Rs 500-Rs 1,000.

BY TRAIN

New Delhi Railway Station | 2 km from Connaught Place | 10-20 minutes

Transfers: Metro, app cab, auto-rickshaw or hotel transfer

ROAD ROUTES

Jaipur: 280 km, 5-6 hours. Frequent Volvo buses. Route: Jaipur-Delhi Expressway / NH48

Agra: 230 km, 3.5-4 hours. Frequent buses. Route: Yamuna Expressway

Chandigarh: 245 km, 4-5 hours. Frequent Volvo buses. Route: NH44

Lucknow: 550 km, 7-9 hours. Day and overnight buses. Route: Agra-Lucknow and Yamuna Expressways

TRAVEL TIPS

1. Use the Airport Express during peak traffic hours.
2. Confirm the exact railway terminal printed on your ticket.
3. Avoid road arrivals during weekday office peaks when possible.
4. Carry a light pollution mask in late autumn and winter.
5. Use registered prepaid booths or established cab apps at terminals.

BEST OPTION

Fly or take a train according to origin; within the city, combine the Delhi Metro with prepaid cabs for the quickest transfers.
